Do something special

The Metropolitan Police has launched a drive for more special constables and volunteers

Dozens of residents have registered an interest in becoming a police special constable.

A recruitment event at Morrisons in Chingford on Wednesday 19 May saw 60 people say they were interested in doing the job of a volunteer police officer for 25 hours a month, which includes all the duties performed by a full time officer.

Waltham Forest already has 50 Metropolitan Police Special Constables (MSC) who hold full time jobs ranging from teaching assistants to nurses and prison officers. They have clocked up more than 1,000 hours of service in the borough since January 2010.

The borough's longest serving MSC is John Ayres who will have done the job for 40 years on 29 June.

He told Waltham Forest News "I've always said that it's the most different thing that you can do - no other voluntary sector role compares with it.

"It is most rewarding because as a member of the public, you get the opportunity to work as a police officer and help to bring safety and security to other people."

Sgt Robin Stewart, who manages the special constables in Waltham Forest, said: "Being

In my opinion

Laura Walker

Chair - Forest Twins and Triplets Club

Have you noticed the amount of twins around in recent years? Is there something in the water, or is it because of improvements in medicine and fertility treatment? Whatever the reason, multiples are here and while their parents and carers are blessed and part of something very special, they are also worked twice as hard (or three times or whichever the multiple number may be).

My twin girls are now four years old and along with my 21-year-old stepson and my nine-year-old daughter, my husband and I have certainly experienced what it's like to have multiples, with the added pressures of having older children as well.

When the girls were six months old, I thought I was going mad, and visited my family doctor who diagnosed severe postnatal depression. Why me? If only I had known about the help and support that was available to me that may not have been the case.

After some research on the Internet, I found the Forest Twins and Triplets club, which ran a playgroup on Monday mornings in Walthamstow. I plucked up the courage to visit and have not looked back since! This club has become my lifeline, where I have made great friends, had lots of friendly advice and support and realise that I am not on my own. At the club, people knew how I felt, and was actually normal, instead of the 'lady with the twins', which made me feel like a celebrity or a freak! Here, we were all in the same boat and we all know the difficulties that came with multiples as well as the joys.

I soon learned that lots of fun was to be had:

Summer fun days, nearly new sales, Christmas parties, entertainers for the children and all at great prices – very important with multiples!

If you have multiples, are expecting multiples or know of someone who is, we look forward to hearing from you. Please contact us via www.fttc.org.uk

We cover the Waltham Forest, Redbridge and Epping Forest areas and welcome others from further afield. You do not have come to the playgroup every week, but you may find that the club really helps when, sometimes, multiples doesn't seem as much fun as it actually looks!

Your great reads

Having picked visitors' brains for the past couple of months, Waltham Forest's libraries formally announced the results of their 'Great Reads' campaign on 13 May.

Showcasing a mix of modern hits and timeless classics, the adults' top-ten featured the likes of John Steinbeck and Haruki Murakami, with Steig Larsson's crime blockbuster 'The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo' claiming top spot.

The borough's younger residents proved themselves similarly fond of the classics, with eco-friendly Dr Seuss tale 'The Lorax' placing alongside modern favourites by Philip Pullman and Eric Carle's 'Very Hungry

Caterpillar' munching his way to number one.

Copies of all 20 books will shortly be winging their way to each of the borough's libraries, so why not pop in to discover a new Great Read of your own?

The new cabinet was announced and the new Mayor sworn in at the meeting

Fact file

- A change in the law required all London councils to choose one of two forms of leadership by 31 December 2009 - either a directly-elected mayor or a 'strong leader' with cabinet
- On 22 October the council decided to adopt the second option, that of strong leader and cabinet
- While this is similar to the pre-existing form of governance (i.e. a leader is elected and chooses cabinet members to oversee the council's various services), there are some changes. These include the following:
 - The leader will serve for a four-year term and can only be removed from post by a resolution of Full Council, death or resignation
 - The Leader will hold all executive powers and may delegate powers to the Cabinet, Cabinet Members, Cabinet committees or officers
 - The Leader will appoint members of the Cabinet and allocate portfolios, and may change these at any time as he/she thinks fit

News from Annual Council

- Annual Council sees formal announcement of leader, cabinet and mayor
- New administration sets out priorities for the coming years, including housing, environment and regeneration

Cllr Masood Ahmad was sworn in as Mayor of Waltham Forest

As well as a new government running the country you'll no doubt be aware that there have been some changes in Waltham Forest's own administration following the elections on Thursday 6 May.

With Labour having taken control of the Council, Thursday 20 May's Annual Council meeting saw the formal announcement as to who will lead the Council, who will stand as mayor and which councillors will step into cabinet roles.

The night saw Cllr Chris Robbins re-elected for his second term as Council Leader and third as councillor, clearly stating that his priorities will be to ensure the borough's streets are safer, the borough is kept cleaner, that Waltham Forest capitalises on the 2012 future," said Cllr Robbins. "As well as prioritising housing, regeneration and the environment we will also be opening local schools for four weeks throughout the summer holidays for residents of all ages to use for community events."

Having adopted the 'strong leader' form of governance (see fact file above), Cllr Robbins will now serve a four-year term as Leader of Waltham Forest Council.

Following notice of his re-election, Cllr Robbins formally announced the make-up of the Council's new cabinet.

The cabinet has reduced more than £50,000 per year. Cllrs Anna Mbachu, Jenny Gray, Mark Rusling and Ahsan Khan will assist as Junior Cabinet Members and, while the services each Cabinet Member oversees have not yet been finalised you can expect Waltham Forest News to be first with the news when the details are finalised. In addition, details of all ward councillors will appear in the next edition.

Cllr Masood Ahmad (Labour) of Lea Bridge Ward was formally sworn in as the new Mayor of Waltham Forest, taking over the duties from Cllr Anna Mbachu. The Mayor stands as the borough's civic and ceremonial head, acting as Chair of all full council meetings. Cllr Ahmad will represent Waltham Forest at public, civic and ceremonial events and welcome guests and dignitaries to the borough on the Council's behalf. Cllr Geoff Walker (Conservative) will serve a year-long term as Deputy Mayor, fulfilling the borough's mayoral obligations when Cllr Ahmad is unable to do so himself.

Vote with your feet

Would you like to explore a new area of Epping Forest this summer but don't know where to start? The City of London Corporation is asking local people to take part in a walk route consultation and discover new places in the forest. As part of the Branching Out project, the City Corporation will be creating six self-guided trails in the Forest, which will allow more people to explore the forest without getting lost! The public consultation runs until the end of July, and everyone who votes will be entered into a prize draw for a £30 voucher. Walk Route Packs can be found on the Internet or picked up from Epping Forest Visitor Centres.

High Street ward election

The Office of National Statistics (ONS) has notified the Council of a possible error in the counting of the votes for the High Street ward election held on 6 May 2010, which could possibly affect the result of the election in that ward. It appears possible that the block votes (voters casting all three of their votes for one party) for the Labour Party candidates in High Street Ward may have been incorrectly logged as 2451 votes instead of 1451 or some other number. Andrew Kilburn, Chief Executive of Waltham Forest Council and Returning Officer, sought external legal advice on how best to proceed to ensure that any mistakes or errors could be rectified. The only way in which a declared election result can be changed is by way of an election petition to the High Court. An election court can then examine a complaint and order the Returning Officer to take appropriate action, including a recount in High Street ward.

The council takes its role in elections very seriously, over 650 people were employed to ensure the parliamentary and local elections held on 6th May were carried out efficiently, safely and fairly. This issue appears to be the result of a very unfortunate and isolated human error, and the Chief Executive is satisfied that a similar error did not occur in any other ward.

- To view the full statement from Andrew Kilburn, please log on to www.walthamforest.gov.uk/election-statement or phone 020 8496 3000. Free internet access is available at all libraries in the borough.

Photography exhibition

A new photography exhibition at Vestry House Museum begins on Saturday 29 May, focusing on the highly original work of Eleni Leoussi. Known for her photographs of contemporary dance, the exhibition draws together work commissioned by some of the UK's leading performers and dance companies as well as a selection of more personal work culled from a 40-year career. A Walthamstow resident, Eleni described her first encounter with the Museum as "love at first sight" and is naturally extremely pleased to have her work on display at the historic building. The exhibition runs until 27 June and entry is free.

Emergency services train at a mocked-up accident

Road accidents drop in Waltham Forest

- The number of casualties in road accidents in Waltham Forest has dropped significantly in the last year
- The number of people injured in accidents in the borough has dropped by almost a third since 2003

Road safety education, cycle training, traffic improvement schemes and enforcement are thought to be behind a 21 per cent drop in the number of road accidents in Waltham Forest.

The number of people killed or injured in accidents in Waltham Forest dropped from 927 to 736 between 2008 and 2009, a reduction of almost 21 per cent. But the reduction was tempered by a slight increase in the number of fatal accidents up from three to five in the same period.

The drop is significant because there was a 10 per cent increase in the number of people injured in accidents between 2007 and 2008, a statistic which had bucked the borough's trend of a steady drop in the number of accidents since 2003.

As well as the overall drop in the number of people

|--|-------|---------|--------|-------|
| Number of injuries in road accidents in Waltham Forest | | | | |
| Year | Fatal | Serious | Slight | Total |
| 2003 | 7 | 121 | 949 | 1077 |
| 2004 | 1 | 104 | 790 | 895 |
| 2005 | 5 | 88 | 825 | 918 |
| 2006 | 1 | 99 | 805 | 905 |
| 2007 | 3 | 89 | 747 | 839 |
| 2008 | 3 | 101 | 823 | 927 |
| 2009 | 5 | 56 | 675 | 736 |

injured on the roads, there were also reductions in the number of cyclists, under 16s, pedestrians and motorcyclists who were killed or seriously injured.

Statistics show that in 2003 seven people were killed, 121 seriously injured and 949 slightly injured in accidents compared with five fatalities, 56 serious injuries and 675 slight injuries in road accidents in 2009.

Statistics for England as a whole show the number and severity of road accidents are decreasing despite there being more cars on the road and increasing numbers of people using cycles to travel.

But despite the reduction in the number injuries on Waltham Forest's roads, there is still work to be done. Road accidents ruin lives, and any serious injury or fatality is one too many.

Head of Road Safety at the AA told Waltham Forest News: "Safety is always top of the list of road users requirements and the most important thing is that when you get good results like Waltham Forest's you maintain them - which can be very difficult.

He added that increasing the skill level of casual cyclists was vitally important because more people were giving up driving in favour of cycling, but most of them still thought like motorists.

He said: "We are getting people out of their cars and onto their bikes but we need to get people thinking like cyclists, not car users riding a bike. That is why free cycle training is such a good idea, it helps reduce accidents."

O's Somme memorial fund

Leyton Orient Supporters' Club (LOSC) is raising funds toward a permanent memorial in Northern France to commemorate the 41 players and staff of Clapton Orient (as the club was then known) who served in the First World War. A fundraising committee was set up in August 2009, and it is thought at least £20,000 will be needed to commission the memorial. To help meet the target, LOSC have designed a Somme Badge that tells the whole Orient WW1 story in its design. The badges are available for a minimum donation of £4.99, with all proceeds going to the O's Somme Memorial Fund. The total raised so far is almost £7000, and badges are available by emailing stevejenkins1881@btinternet.com

Filthy bakery ordered to close

A bakery has been ordered to pay £460 costs by magistrates who also instructed the premises to close until hygiene standards improve. Amazing Grace in Heybridge Way, Leyton, was ordered to close on Thursday 29 April when environmental health officers found the bakery to be dirty, with rat droppings in the store room and an infestation of food moths in dried products. On Wednesday 5 May Waltham Forest Magistrates' Court ratified the closure and said the bakery could not re-open until Waltham Forest Council's environmental health officers had agreed.

Young people build bird boxes to earn their travel back

Earn your travel back

- Young people who breach Oyster card guidelines can have them deactivated as a punishment
- Earn Your Travel Back scheme gives 12-18 year olds the chance to reactivate their cards by doing community work

Ten young people have been making bird boxes for use in the borough's parks to help reclaim their travel cards.

The Earn Your Travel Back Scheme managed by BTCV (British Trust for Conservation Volunteers), Transport for London and London Wildlife Trust, gives young people aged 12 to 18, the chance to earn their Oyster Cards back by doing community work.

Most cards are deactivated because they are defaced or otherwise misused by their owners, although some young people lose their cards because of anti-social behaviour.

The aim of the scheme is to show young people their actions have consequences and give them the opportunity to atone in a way that benefits the wider community.

Last month, ten young people made bird boxes in Lloyd Park for use in parks around Waltham Forest.

One young person who participated in the scheme said: "The day was not at all like I was expecting - I thought it would feel like a punishment but actually we did something that will help the birds in the park."

"I think this was a harsh lesson for me, but I'm glad I did it. I will definitely look after my Oyster card in future."

Fact File

- Under 16s get free bus and tram travel across London by using a valid Oyster Card
- Children under ten can also travel for free on the Underground, Docklands Light Railway and some national rail routes
- Young people aged 11-15 can buy off peak travel cards for £1 across zones one to nine and child discounts on other fares
- 16-18 year olds and students can also get big discounts on fares
- Free children's Oyster cards can be withdrawn for a minimum period of six months for breaching the terms of use of the card
- About 3,620 cards were taken away from youngsters for breaching the code of behaviour since the cards were introduced in June 2008

Living on the veg

- Local group encourages people to grow their own veg
- Seedlings for sale and advice on-hand at plant sales throughout the spring months

With prime-time television currently awash with cheery folks growing their own fruit and veg it'd seem that those 'Good Life' ideals have never been more popular.

It's hard, though, to know where to start if you've not got a Charlie Dimmock or Percy Thrower on-hand to offer advice, so why not draw on some local knowledge to help you on your way?

Local workers' cooperative Organiclea have been championing local produce since 2001 and last year took over the Council's 10-acre Hawkwood Nursery site.

As well as sowing and growing, the green-fingered sorts are organising a series of stalls with the aim of encouraging people to grow more food in the borough's gardens, allotments and open spaces. They'll be selling seedlings and offering advice every Saturday from 10am-2pm until 19 June at the Hornbeam Centre (458 Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E17 9AH) and there'll be an open day at the Nursery itself (115 Hawkwood Crescent, Chingford, E4 7UH) on Sunday 30 May from 11am-4pm.

Organiclea member Clare Joy said: "The best growing tips are those exchanged when gardeners get together and chat. The stall not only sells plants raised by a local workers cooperative and many volunteers, it offers a chance for all growers to talk and share advice at a key point in the growing calendar. Come along, pick up starter plants and tips and get growing!"

OUR 10:10 FAMILY CHECKLIST. EVERYONE'S AT IT.

This year, thousands of individuals and organisations are uniting behind one simple idea:

that together we can take the first step to solve climate change.

The idea is simple: we work together to achieve a 10% cut in the UK's carbon emissions in 2010. From local shops to office blocks, everyone's invited.

Cutting 10% in one year is a bold target, but for most of us it's an achievable one, and is in line with what scientists say we need right now. And by signing up to a 10% target we're not just supporting 10:10 - we're making it happen.

Below is a list of actions that the average person, family or household needs to do to cut their carbon by 10%. Tick each box as you succeed in doing each item. Once you've ticked all ten, you've done 10:10. It's as simple as that.

Peter Tarrier and Andrew Vince have been training for more than 18 months

Saddling up for charity

- Pair to cycle from John O'Groats to Land's End in aid of cancer charities
- The route, which runs the length of the UK, will take a week to complete

Walthamstow man Peter Tarrier and friend Andrew Vince, who both lost parents to cancer, are cycling the length of the UK to raise money for charity.

The pair, who met at Chingford-based Orion Harriers running club are keen athletes who have completed many running events in the past. They decided to take on the epic cycle in memory of Peter's mother who died of breast cancer three years ago, his father who died of prostate cancer five years ago, and Andrew's father who died of cancer six years ago. The 874-mile journey from John O'Groats to Land's End will take them seven days to complete. They will cover an average of 125 miles each day, hoping to raise £12,000 for Breast Cancer Campaign and Cancer Research UK in the process.

They will start their journey all over the borough and beyond.

Peter told Waltham Forest News: "Because we have both lost parents to cancer, the charities are very close to our hearts and we wanted a special challenge to raise money for them.

Andrew said: "We're really looking forward to it, it's going to be hard work but it will be a great sense of achievement when we can say we've done it."

Peter added: "We'd be really happy if anyone could sponsor us, every penny we raise really does count for the charities."

Anyone who wants to sponsor Peter and Andrew should go to www.justgiving.com/peter-tarrier or www.justgiving.com/andrew-vince to make a donation. Free Internet access is available at all libraries in the borough.

Waltham Forest youth offer

SPECIAL FEATURE
AND KEEP

Groups offering dancing and cheerleading are among those receiving funding

Young people help youth groups get cash boost

- Thousands of young people to benefit from new youth activities across the borough
- Youth panel gives out £1 million funding

From drama groups and street dancing, to clothing design and outdoor activities, there is now something on offer for every young person thanks to the Waltham Forest Youth Offer.

The first 2010 Youth Offer – a £1million pot for youth activities – has just been announced after a Youth Panel assessed all applications for the funding and decided which groups offered the most interesting and enjoyable activities.

The Youth Panel is a group of 14 young people from across the borough that has evaluated applications for funding and help decide which youth projects should receive it.

“It’s been six months since we started actually making decisions on the youth panel, said Youth Panel member Charlotte, “but we’ve been working together on the panel for about a year including all the training.

“It was pretty powerful to know we had the choice of what was going to happen

“Thirty-three youth groups have benefited from the latest round of funding, with grants ranging from £5,000 to £150,000.”

Fact file

- The £1million Youth Offer is funding by Waltham Forest Council
- Every year, organisations across the borough are invited to bid for their own scheme
- To be successful, a project must be based in Waltham Forest and open to anyone aged from five to 25
- A further £100,000 is available for the winter programme in the borough and what young people would be able to get involved with. It was pretty cool; like being on Dragon’s Den.”

Another member of the Youth Panel, Danielle, added: “Lots of people would come to us with really good ideas for projects and applying for money. The projects where young people were leading it or had said it was something they would like to do, stood out more.”

Thirty-three youth groups in total have benefited from this latest round of funding, ranging in grants from £5,000 up to £150,000. Turn over to see case studies from across the borough, get a taste of what’s on offer for young people and if you’re a youth group looking for funding, information on how you can apply to the next round.

Games City (E17)

Funding
£16,494

What's on offer?

Games City on Garnett Way, off Billet Road, has been providing local young people with a place to go, chill out and play computer games for the last four years. With a number of different games consoles available, you can play by yourself or arrange tournaments with your friends for as little as £1 an hour or for free on Friday and Saturday nights.

Or, if you've got school or college work that needs to get done, you can use the PCs on site and print for free.

"We're a modern day arcade; we've got lots of different computer consoles and games and PCs for browsing the Internet and doing word processing.

"It's a really sociable atmosphere. Parents might not necessarily want four or five of their kids' friends in the house playing computer games, but they can come here and socialise and play together as a big group."

Billy James, owner.

"We love this place, it's really good. We didn't used to have much to do and we'd sometimes be bored but now we can come down here and play games, or go on the Internet and do work. Billy lets us print out our schoolwork for free, which is really good as well." Aiden, regular at Games City.

"We take on young people of all ages, from four or so right up to 18. With the dance sessions, we have groups for different abilities but obviously if someone's got the skills then we'll move them up.

"We've always had a youth group though, from when we started the club 12 years ago. It means that even if you're not interested in dancing or singing, you can still come down and chill out. We've got a pool table, a Wii, and now we've got the table tennis equipment, too. We're already looking to arrange tournaments so come down and get involved." Yvonne Bailey, owner.

Waltham Forest youth offer

How groups can apply for funding

- Groups can now apply for funding in the winter youth offer programme
- Community, private, voluntary and independent organisations can all apply for funding

Sports projects can receive funding

The Youth Offer is open to any organisation looking to work with young people in Waltham Forest, across the borough as a whole or in one particular area.

Every year, around £1million is spent on providing exciting, innovative and educational programmes across the borough across two lots of funding, so if you think your organisation might fit the bill, why not apply?

More info

Applying couldn't be easier, see the tender notice on p19 for more information, or email lorraine.adjaye-kwofie@walthamforest.gov.uk for an application form or call the Commissioning Team Children and Young People Services team on 020 8496 3000.

"The Youth Offer funding is absolutely essential to us. We do quite a big programme of work anyway but this funding is crucial for things like staff costs, hire of facilities, equipments and basic admin," said Phil Rudding, of Leyton Orient Community Sports Programme.

Fact file

- In the Youth Offer winter programme, there is a further £100,000 available
- Any organisation, whether community, private or voluntary, is eligible to apply if they are looking to provide services for young people aged ten to 19
- The age range increases to 25 years old for disabled young people
- The key priorities of the Youth Offer are to increase participation in positive activities, help more young people gain recognised accreditations and to strengthen youth involvement in commissioning youth activities
- The Youth Panel will assess all applications for the winter programme
- They will be checking applications for how experienced the organisation is, how well their proposals meet the Youth Offer's priorities, an understanding of local issues and a desire to involve young people

The deadline for submissions is 12noon on Wednesday 30 June 2010

Our Future

In brief

Olympic work starts in borough

Construction work has now started on Eton Manor – the part of the Olympic Park within Waltham Forest. Situated just a few minutes walk from Leyton tube station, Eton Manor will be a prominent fixture of the 2012 Games as a new 130m-high wind turbine, dubbed the Angel of Leyton, will dominate much of the local skyline, providing power to the Park during and after the Games. The site will also have temporary training pools for Aquatics events during the Olympic Games before hosting the world's Wheelchair Tennis stars during the Paralympic Games, with nine competition courts in total and four warm-up courts.

• For more information about work on the Olympic Park site, visit www.london2012.com or phone 020 3 2012 000.

The guide will list disability-friendly venues across Waltham Forest

Borough-wide disability guide

- New guide to showcase disability-friendly shops, parks and venues across Waltham Forest
- Call for residents to get involved

Work is underway to ensure Waltham Forest is as disability-friendly as possible in the run-up to the 2012 Games, and residents are being called upon to share their views.

Working in partnership with award-winning disability organisation Disabled Go, Waltham Forest Council is helping compile a guide to locations – including parks, leisure centres, high street shops, council buildings, restaurants and plenty more besides – that are accessible to those with disabilities.

In order to make the guide as exhaustive as possible, we need help from those who already know the lay of the land and that means you. You can attend a drop-in session on Wednesday 2 June (2pm-4pm at the Waltham Forest Disability Resource Centre, 1a Warner Road, Walthamstow E17 7DY), get in touch to suggest a venue for inclusion, volunteer for work experience to help you gain valuable skills and knowledge or even apply to become a paid trainee surveyor who'll help put the whole thing together.

The guide will be launched in August 2010 and will enable people to find out whether venues have adapted toilets or parking close by, as well as specific details such as whether there are tactile or Braille markings in lifts or on doors, the positioning of fixtures and fittings, and whether you can request large print or Braille information.

www.disabledgo.com currently features 15,000 venues across London including two other Olympic Host Boroughs - Tower Hamlets and Greenwich.

If you want to get involved or simply want more information about the project please contact Anna Borthwick at anna.borthwick@disabledgo.com or phone 01438 842710.

Helping local people into work

Waltham Forest

Worknet

- Worknet scheme offers classroom and on-the-job training
- In the last year Worknet has helped 616 local people into work

With the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games drawing ever closer, one boom industry is sure to be the hospitality trade.

With droves more tourists making their way to London for the spectacle, stadiums, venues, hotels and restaurants will be seeking staff that know the ropes to help cope with extra demand.

To make sure local people are best equipped to take advantage of the opportunities on their doorstep, the Council has been working with training providers like Akona Ltd to give eager would-be workers a leg up. Trained under the Worknet initiative, residents looking for work are put through their paces in a variety of different disciplines, from stewarding and security through to food safety and catering.

Carefully mixing classroom-based study and on-the-job experience with big names like Wembley Stadium and the borough's very own Leyton Orient FC, the courses ensure recruits don't just have the qualifications they need to impress potential employers, but also the all-important hands-on experience as well

"After doing the courses I started working as a steward at Leyton Orient," said Kim, a former Worknet recruit who's now putting her skills to use working for the borough's favourite football team.

"I'm now a Supervisor and am still working my way up the ladder. I wouldn't have been able to do this without Akona's help and the training I was given – the courses really increased my confidence."

One Worknet candidate who was initially sceptical was Fernando, who had been referred by local housing it to anyone." Having successfully completed the first part of his training, Fernando went on to complete the second phase and helped cater his first association CBHA. Though the catering course was not his first choice, Fernando was quickly won over and feels the experience gave him a valuable opportunity to get his teeth into something he might not have otherwise investigated. "I feel my life will get a real lift as a result of the training I've received and I'd like to go far in the catering industry," he said. "The course was excellent and I would recommend Worknet is an initiative that aims to help Waltham Forest residents enter the workplace and ensure they develop the skills they need. The Worknet partnership is led by the Council and has support from Jobcentre Plus as well as registered social landlords. Delivered by local providers residents are trained, supported and given interview tips, help on crafting the perfect CV, on-the-job experience and formal qualifications. The programme also offers a free screening and recruitment service to local businesses who want to tap into the local talent pool and do their bit to help Waltham Forest recover from the economic downturn.

An artist's impression of the new look fire station

More fire fighters for Walthamstow

- Walthamstow Fire Station to be rebuilt to provide better facilities and make room for bigger vehicles
- Number of engines will be doubled and space set aside for specialist units

Walthamstow Fire Station is to be demolished, rebuilt and expanded as part of a drive to improve fire services in Waltham Forest.

The number of fire engines will increase from one to two and the number of firefighters doubled to 10. There will also be extra space for vehicles and the new station will be large enough to house the biggest vehicles owned by London Fire Brigade.

The existing building in Forest Road, Walthamstow, closed on 27 April and the crews based there have temporarily moved to Woodford Fire Station until building work is completed in December 2011.

Waltham Forest Borough Commander Richard Squire, said: "The current building has served London well for 85 years but it's no longer suitable for the needs of a 21st Century fire and rescue service.

"A brand new fire station is fantastic news for Waltham Forest and an extra fire engine will mean that we are better able to respond to local emergencies.

He added "Being in the heart of the community with a fire station that is more accessible to the public will definitely help to reduce the amount of fires and other emergencies we attend, as there will more opportunity to pass on advice to local people face to face."

Other changes due to be made to the station will include better kitchen and accommodation facilities, along with the installation of energy saving technology.

Fire Safety tips

- Make sure you have a properly installed and working smoke alarm
- Make sure your cigarette, cigar or pipe is out when you've finished smoking it. Never smoke in bed
- Never leave children alone in the kitchen. Keep matches, lighters and pan handles where children can't reach them. Fit a child safety catch to the oven door
- Switch off and unplug electrical equipment – only leave on appliances that are designed to be left on, like the fridge
- Check candles – they can go on smouldering and start a fire. Double check that they are out and never leave one burning when you go to sleep

For more information on fire safety log on to www.london-fire.gov.uk or phone 020 8555 1200

In brief

Acid attackers sentenced

Two Walthamstow men have been jailed for an acid attack that left a man severely disfigured. Mohammed Vakas, 26, was found guilty by an Old Bailey jury of plotting to murder Awais Akram and sentenced to 30 years in jail. Vakas attacked 25-year-old Akram after discovering he was in a relationship with his sister Sadia Khatoon. On her husband's orders, Khatoon lured Akram into an ambush where he was beaten, stabbed and doused with sulphuric acid. Mohammed Adeel, also from Walthamstow and 17-year-old Fabion Kuci, from Kilburn, were found guilty of conspiracy to cause grievous bodily harm and sentenced to 14 and eight years respectively. Khatoon and husband Shakeel Abassi are still being hunted.

World Cup preparations

The World Cup is only weeks away and Waltham Forest Council and the police are working together to make sure everyone can enjoy a safe and peaceful tournament. Regardless of whether you'll be cheering on Wayne Rooney and his England teammates in South Africa or supporting another team, we want to ensure residents and visitors to the borough can enjoy all the matches in a safe and pleasant environment. For a comprehensive round up of all the work we're doing to keep you safe, see the 7 June edition of Waltham Forest News.

• For more information on how the Council is helping to make the World Cup go smoothly phone the Community Safety Team on 020 8496 3000.

Crime rises

Crime in Waltham Forest has increased 3.9 per cent according to police figures. The number of offences committed in the borough during the 12 months from March 2009 to March 2010 was 27,259 compared with 26,240 during the same period the previous year. The increase contrasts with a 1.9 per cent decrease in total reported crime across London as a whole. However there was a significant drop in the number of murders, from 10 to four, while motor vehicle crime and racially motivated crime also dropped.

Tenant Services Authority is the new social housing regulator. There are six service standards that social housing providers must meet, designed to help improve the services provided for the eight million people living in social housing in England.

The standards cover tenant involvement and empowerment, home (repairs and major works), tenancy, neighbourhood and community and value for money.

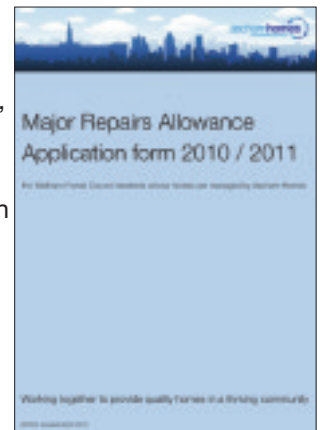

The full standards are available online at www.tenantservicesauthority.org. and copies are available at our reception at Willow House, 869 Forest Road, E17 or telephone Ascham Direct on 020 8496 4197. Ascham Homes and Waltham Forest Council need to report to council tenants by October 2010 about whether we are delivering services in the right way. If you would like to get involved in identifying how Ascham Homes and Waltham Forest Council meet the standards, please contact our Policy and Development team on 020 8496 4080.

Major Repairs Allowance

If you would like to apply for MRA funding contact Ascham Direct on 020 8496 4197 to request an application form or complete the online application form at www.aschamhomes.org.uk/about_us/news/mra_2010.aspx.

We were inspected by the Audit Commission in February 2010 and the report detailing their findings about the quality of our services was published on 20 May 2010. Overall they assessed us to be providing a fair one-star service, with uncertain prospects for improvement.

Some of the things they think we do well include:

- Getting in contact with us is easy. Opening hours are convenient and the response to telephone calls and correspondence is timely;
- The main office provides a welcoming environment and staff are polite and professional;
- Good information is provided on the website, including leaflets for new and existing residents, and complaints are answered fully;
- We collect and use diversity information to improve services and there are effective translation and interpreting services;
- We work well with our partners to provide welfare and debt advice, link vulnerable tenants to floating support and promote employment skills;
- There is good progress in improving residents' homes and high satisfaction with works completed;
- A high proportion of repairs are completed in target times, right first time and within appointment times;
- Gas appliances are serviced efficiently and effectively;
- Income recovery processes are managed well;
- There is an increasing range of ways for residents to get involved in our work;
- We work well with our partners to address unauthorised occupation and overcrowding;
- Estates are generally clean, with no graffiti or abandoned vehicles. The grounds maintenance service is generally effective and estate inspections help maintain estate environments;
- The collection of revenue service charges from leaseholders is high; and
- There are some examples of gaining efficiencies through improved procurement.

Some of the things they think we need to improve include:

- Tenant satisfaction with overall service is low;
- Service enquiries are not answered consistently. Our response to complaints is slow and our call centre does not provide an effective telephone service;

- We do not monitor the impact of our services on diverse communities in some key areas;
- Our response to antisocial behaviour, domestic violence and harassment is weak, resulting in low satisfaction;
- We do not have up-to-date information on the condition of all our stock;
- The appearance of communal areas reflects a lack of investment;
- A significant loss of income from major works for leaseholders demonstrates weak financial management;
- There are high costs in most areas of operation and these are not reflected in positive outcomes in many areas. Value for money is not embedded in our work;
- The support offered to residents applying for aids and adaptations is limited;
- The investment of resident time and energy in formal methods of engagement does not produce significant outcomes. There is a lack of a joined up, strategic approach to resident involvement, for example in making the profile of residents involved more diverse; and
- Leasehold billing is not fully accurate

We have already begun to address many of the issues raised by the Audit Commission. We are united and committed to working with residents and the Council to achieve improvements that reflect residents' priorities. We have radically reshaped our budget to commit £9.5m to repairs and maintenance. This will enable us to begin to address outstanding repairs. Further, in partnership with the Council, we have allocated over £1m to our resident Area Contract Panels. They will determine how this money is spent to improve our estates.

Actions to address all findings from the Inspection are being incorporated into our improvement plans for 2010 – 2011 and we will keep you informed of our progress through our consultation forums and this newsletter.

Copies of the full report are available on the Audit Commission's website www.audit-commission.gov.uk or by contacting us.
